Easter 6—21 May 2017

You have stood at this junction before

You will stand at this junction again

And if you pause you can ask yourself

Which way to turn

You can turn away from your own sadness

And run the race named revenge

You will run that tired track again and again

Or you can admit your own pain

And walk the path that ends

In this direction lies freedom, my friend

I can show you where hope and wholeness make their homes

But you can't push past your anguish on your way there

To find the path to peace

You will have to meet your pain

And speak its name

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE? Next Sunday, 28 May, following the 10am Sung Eucharist, we will explore how we might move forward as a parish. This will be an initial opportunity for us to share positive ideas and suggestions for how we can be reconciled as a parish, and work to ensure that St John's is a safe environment for everyone in the future. Please think and pray about it in this coming week, and make every effort to be present next Sunday.
